To Whom it May Concern

Dr Mahmoud Hamada

From June 2003 to November 2007 Dr Mahmoud Hamada taught the postgraduate subjects 25721 Investment Management and 25762 Synthetic Financial Products offered by the School of Finance and Economics at the University of Technology, Sydney to students in our Master of Business in Finance and Master of Business Administration courses. These classes have been for between 35 and 45 students. Mahmoud is an exemplary employee and all of his work is carried out with a high degree of professionalism. I have reviewed the student feedback from these lectures and this is uniformly positive. The students here at UTS particularly like his well structured lectures, his clear and precise lecturing style and his obvious knowledge and passion for the subject material. They also appreciate that as a professional risk manager Mahmoud is able to bring current industry practices and experience to the class room.

Members of the School of Finance and Economics have derived substantial benefit from their engagement with Mahmoud Hamada and are very appreciative of his continuing contribution of current professional practice to our educational program.
